

Cincinnati-Hamilton County Central Riverfront Redevelopment Images

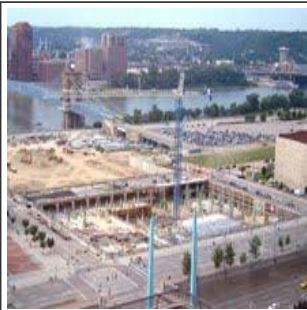

Fort Washington Way pre-reconstruction (1998)

Reconstructed Fort Washington Way (2005)

The Banks moves from a 'project on paper' to reality (2008)

The Banks project adds garage spaces (2009)

The Banks 'underbuild' complete (2010)

The Banks private development (2011)

Riverfront development from the southeast

Close-up of the Main Street Fountain with the Moerlein Lager House in background

Nighttime close-up of the Walnut Street Fountain and stairs

Overall Cincinnati Central
Riverfront development

Supplemental Materials

This page on The Banks Public Partnership website contains all pertinent planning documents forming the basis of Cincinnati Hamilton County Central Riverfront Redevelopment. Included are two videos: one, a review of the progress between the reconfiguration of Fort Washington Way and groundbreaking for The Banks mixed-use development; the other, created as a background for the Award of Excellence for Implementation from the American Planning Association. (<http://www.thebankspublicpartnership.com/planning>)